INTERNATIONAL ARTIST DAVID HARBER LAUNCHES "STEEL BREEZE"

David Harber's "Steel Breeze"

JUNE 2019: Award-winning international artist David Harber is proud to announce the launch of his latest sculptural masterpiece "Steel Breeze".

David's latest sculpture Steel Breeze is a vast sculpture that cleverly plays with the relationship between positive and negative space. Made from mirror polished stainless steel, two circular discs are positioned parallel to each other and laser cut in an elaborate pattern to reveal the space between them. The piece is encircled by an elegant band of antique tan patinated bronze. It comes with the interior mirror polished, but there is scope to customise it with internal lighting, by painting the inside or leaving it unpolished. Depending on customisation, the prices start at £8,972 + VAT (inc. installation and delivery within UK mainland) for a 1.2 metre Steel Breeze.

"Steel Breeze plays with the light, offering kaleidoscopic reflections of the environment around it. The name came from Pink Floyd lyrics and was inspired by the way the wind blows through the sculpture," says David Harber. He added: "There's a playfulness in the laser-cut patterns and in the repeating kaleidoscopic reflections. The piece has a lyrical and whimsical quality. What you see isn't obvious – in fact, there's an element of being lost in space and time when you view it."
